LOVE YOUR BRAIN

Welcome to the 2027 Easy to Hard Collection

Fresh for 2027 — a curated Sudoku book for adults, where beautiful grids grow from calm first steps into stronger logic.

Welcome to Love Your Brain, and to one of the newest books in our 2027 Sudoku collection for adults. This book was made with two equal kinds of love: love for beauty, and love for a sharp mind. We believe a puzzle should do more than keep you busy. It should look inviting on the page, feel elegant in the hand, and reward your attention with those satisfying moments when everything suddenly clicks.

In these pages, patterns matter in every sense. Each puzzle has been crafted around a visual identity, because solving should begin as a pleasure for the eye. Then, as you solve, a second kind of pattern begins to appear: the logical kind. This volume gives that logic a welcoming runway, moving through three equal sections — Easy, Medium, and Hard — so the book can begin gently and gradually ask for sharper focus.

The Easy section is not here to rush you. It is here to help your eye settle into rows, columns, boxes, and clean house logic. The Medium section then begins asking for stronger candidate awareness. By the Hard section, the same two final truths still govern every placement, but the path to those truths may pass through pairs, triples, intersections, and other useful patterns.

That is the spirit of this book: warm, beautiful, progressive, and quietly satisfying. We wanted it to feel less like a stack of exercises and more like a thoughtful companion. You will also feel, in these pages, the spirit of Sudo — the friendly guide from our Sudoku Companion world — whose job is always the same: to make progress feel clear, human, and encouraging.

Whether you are new to Sudoku, returning after a long pause, or simply looking for a calmer climb, we are genuinely glad you are here. Some puzzles will welcome you softly. Others will make you pause, test a pattern, grin, and say, “Ah. There you are.” That too is part of the fun.

Questions, feedback, suggestions, and favorite moments are all welcome.

The rules are simple. The logic is elegant.

A Sudoku grid may look busy, but its logic is surprisingly tidy.

Fill the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3×3 box contains the digits 1 through 9 exactly once. That is the whole game.

Rows

Each row must contain the digits 1 through 9 exactly once.

Columns

Each column must contain the digits 1 through 9 exactly once.

Boxes

Each 3×3 box must contain the digits 1 through 9 exactly once.

Your mission as a solver

Place one correct digit in one cell. Then another. Then another. You are never required to solve the whole puzzle in one leap.

Every valid placement ends in one of two ways. Not three. Not ten. Two.

Naked Single

1. Only digit left in the cell

A cell begins with several candidate digits. One by one, impossible digits are removed until only one survives.

Hidden Single

2. Only cell left for the digit

Inside a row, column, or box, a digit may have several possible seats. If all but one are ruled out, the last remaining seat is forced.

On the next page, we show both endings on a real puzzle.

Two final truths, shown on a real puzzle

Even a real puzzle resolves one clean truth at a time.

Hidden Single

Only cell left for the digit

Start inside the primary house: row 9. We are looking for the only legal home for digit 1. In row 9, the only two open seats that can still matter for 1 are r9c1 and r9c2. Now the witness appears: r4c1 already contains a 1. Because r4c1 and r9c1 share column 1, that witness blocks 1 from r9c1. Once r9c1 is removed, only r9c2 remains alive for digit 1 in row 9. That is the hidden-single ending: one house, one digit, one surviving cell. So r9c2 = 1.

- Source puzzle: L-2-1
- Primary house: row 9
- Digit tracked: 1
- Candidate seats for 1 in row 9: r9c1 and r9c2
- Witness: r4c1 = 1
- Blocking house: column 1
- Elimination: r4c1 blocks 1 from r9c1 through column 1
- Surviving seat: r9c2
- Result: r9c2 = 1

6	1	5	7	3	2	9	4	8

Naked Single

Only digit left in the cell

Now the story is cell-centered. The target cell is r2c9, and we ask which digit can still live there. The witnesses remove the other digits one by one. Row 2 already contains 1 at r2c3, 2 at r2c7, 3 at r2c4, 4 at r2c6, and 6 at r2c5, so those digits cannot go in r2c9. Column 9 contains 5 at r3c9, 7 at r5c9, and 8 at r9c9, so those digits are also blocked from r2c9. After those eight digits have been removed, only 9 remains. That is the naked-single ending: one cell, eight eliminated digits, one surviving digit. So r2c9 = 9.

- Source puzzle: L-2-1
- Target cell: r2c9
- Row 2 witnesses: r2c3 = 1, r2c7 = 2, r2c4 = 3, r2c6 = 4, r2c5 = 6
- Column 9 witnesses: r3c9 = 5, r5c9 = 7, r9c9 = 8
- Eliminated digits: 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8
- Surviving digit: 9
- Result: r2c9 = 9

Easy and Medium puzzles often reveal these endings directly through hidden singles and naked singles. Harder puzzles hide the same endings behind patterns. That is where subsets and intersections begin to matter.

Subsets: when a small group takes control

A small pattern can quietly take digits off the table.

Puzzle source: L-3-36 • Hard section • page 140 • sixth puzzle on the page

The pattern to watch for is ownership. If two cells are the only places for two digits, or three cells collectively absorb a small digit set, those digits are spoken for. The rest of the house must step aside. What comes next is one of Sudoku's two familiar endings: either a cell is left with one digit, or a house is left with one cell.

Naked Triple

Enter the pattern house first: column 9. We inspect the empty cells one by one. At r1c9, the row, column, and box already contain 1, 2, 4, 5, 8, and 9, so r1c9 can only be 3, 6, or 7. At r4c9, the row, column, and box also remove 1, 2, 4, 5, 8, and 9, so r4c9 can only be 3, 6, or 7. At r6c9, the row, column, and box remove 1, 2, 4, 5, 7, 8, and 9, so r6c9 can only be 3 or 6. Now the pattern appears: three cells in column 9 collectively hold only the three digits 3, 6, and 7. That is a naked triple. Those digits are now owned by r1c9, r4c9, and r6c9 inside column 9. Now move to the final action house: row 9. We are tracking digit 7. The witnesses first do most of the work: r7c1 blocks 7 from r9c1 through column 1, r6c3 blocks 7 from r9c3 through column 3, r5c4 blocks 7 from r9c4 through column 4, and r3c6 blocks 7 from r9c6 through column 6. That leaves two possible seats for 7 in row 9: r9c8 and r9c9. Then the naked triple finishes the job. Because column 9 already reserves 7 for the triple cells, r9c9 cannot be 7. Only r9c8 survives for digit 7 in row 9. So r9c8 = 7.

Naked Pair

Later in the same puzzle, return to column 9. The earlier triple has helped the column tighten. Now inspect the remaining pattern cells. At r1c9, the row, column, and box already remove 1, 2, 4, 5, 7, 8, and 9, so r1c9 can only be 3 or 6. At r6c9, the row, column, and box remove the same outside digits, so r6c9 can only be 3 or 6 as well. Two cells in one house hold exactly the same two digits. That is a naked pair. The digits 3 and 6 are now owned by r1c9 and r6c9 inside column 9. Now move to the final action house: row 9. We are tracking digit 6. The witnesses first narrow the row: r2c1 blocks 6 from r9c1 through column 1, r8c4 blocks 6 from r9c4 through column 4, and r5c6 blocks 6 from r9c6 through column 6. That leaves two possible seats for 6 in row 9: r9c3 and r9c9. Then the naked pair finishes the job. Because column 9 already reserves 6 for the pair cells, r9c9 cannot be 6. Only r9c3 survives for digit 6 in row 9. So r9c3 = 6.

Subsets teach a useful habit: first see who owns the digits, then watch how that ownership clears the next truthful move.

Intersections: when one house leans on another

Sometimes a box and a line work together to force progress.

Puzzle source: L-3-272 • Hard section • page 180 • second puzzle on the page

The pattern to watch for here is territory. A line and a box overlap in a small set of cells. If a digit is trapped in that overlap, one house gains control and the other house has to give ground. That territorial shift does not finish the puzzle by itself. It clears the path toward one of Sudoku's two final endings.

Pointing Pair

Enter the pattern house first: box 2. We are tracking digit 5. In this box, the only open seats that could matter for 5 are r1c4, r1c6, and r2c5. Now the trap setter appears: r4c5 already contains a 5. Because r4c5 and r2c5 share column 5, that witness blocks 5 from r2c5. After that, digit 5 has lost row 2 inside box 2 and is trapped in row 1, at r1c4 or r1c6. That pattern is called a pointing pair: box 2 points digit 5 across row 1. Now move to the target cell r1c2. The witnesses have already removed most digits from that cell: r1c5 removes 1 through row 1, r1c1 removes 2 through row 1, r4c2 removes 3 through column 2, r1c9 removes 4 through row 1, r3c3 removes 6 through box 1, r8c2 removes 7 through column 2, and r6c2 removes 8 through column 2. Only 5 and 9 remain. Then the pointing pair finishes the job: since box 2 already forces its 5 into row 1, no other cell in row 1 outside box 2 can be 5. So 5 is removed from r1c2, and the only surviving digit is 9. Therefore r1c2 = 9.

		8	3			9	5
3	7	5	2		9	4 5 6 8	1	5 6 8
9				4			5	3

Claiming Pair

Now continue from the pointing-pair result. This matters: the pointing pair we just found removed 5 from row 1 outside box 2, including r1c8. That clears the way for the next intersection. Enter the pattern line: column 8. We are again tracking digit 5. In column 8, r3c8 is blocked by the 5 in row 3, r5c8 is blocked by the 5 in row 5, and r1c8 is blocked by the earlier pointing pair at r1c4 and r1c6. The only remaining places for 5 in column 8 are r7c8 and r9c8. Both sit inside box 9. That pattern is called a claiming pair: column 8 claims digit 5 inside box 9. Now move to the final action house: row 8. Before the hero pattern acts, digit 5 can still sit in r8c3, r8c7, or r8c9. The ordinary witness r4c5 blocks 5 from r8c5 through column 5, but row 8 still needs more help. The claiming pair now finishes the job. Because column 8 has claimed digit 5 inside box 9, the other cells of box 9 cannot be 5, including r8c7 and r8c9. That leaves only one surviving seat for 5 in row 8: r8c3. Therefore r8c3 = 5.

Intersections teach the second habit: when a digit is trapped in the overlap between a box and a line, one house gains control and another house gives ground.

Warm-up 1: practice seeing subsets

Before the main climb begins, let your eyes rehearse the music.

Practice puzzle: L-3-65 • Hard section • page 145 • fifth puzzle on the page

Each challenge below shows the grid at the exact moment just before the hinted technique solves the next cell. Find the pattern first, then use it to identify the next step.

Find the naked pair

In this grid, find the naked pair and use it to solve the very next cell. Which two cells lock the pair, and which cell resolves because of it?

Now find the naked triple

In this later grid state, find the naked triple and use it to solve the very next cell. Which three cells form the pattern, and which cell resolves because of it?

Check yourself

Naked Pair: r5c4 and r5c6 form a naked pair with digits 1 and 5. The pair sits in row 5 and removes 1 from r5c2. After that, column 2 has only one surviving seat for digit 1: r6c2. Therefore r6c2 = 1.

Naked Triple: r7c8, r8c8, and r9c8 form a naked triple with digits 1, 2, and 8. The triple sits in column 8 and removes 1 from r1c8. After that, row 1 has only one surviving seat for digit 1: r1c7. Therefore r1c7 = 1.

Do not start from the original puzzle. Start from the grid you see here, find the pattern, and solve the next cell.

Warm-up 2: practice seeing intersections

When a box and a line start negotiating, a digit usually loses its hiding place.

Practice puzzle: L-3-309 • Hard section • page 186 • third puzzle on the page

Each challenge below shows the grid at the exact moment just before the hinted intersection technique solves the next cell. First find the overlap, then decide which house gives ground.

		5		2	1	9		3
	9	2	7	5	3		1

Find the claiming pair

In this grid, find the claiming pair and use it to solve the very next cell. Which overlap traps the digit, and which cell resolves because of it?

		5	6	2	1	9		3
	9	2	7	5	3		1
3		1	9	8	4	2
		9	4	7	8			1

	1	6	5	4	7			9
9	5		3	1	2		6	7
7		3	8	6	9	1

Now find the pointing pair

In this later grid state, find the pointing pair and use it to solve the very next cell. Which overlap traps the digit, and which cell resolves because of it?

Check yourself

Claiming Pair: in column 7, digit 5 is trapped inside box 6 at r4c7 and r5c7. That column claims digit 5 inside the box. Focus on row 6: the claiming pair removes 5 from r6c9, leaving r6c6 as the only surviving seat for 5 in row 6. Therefore r6c6 = 5.

Pointing Pair: in box 3, digit 4 is trapped on row 2 at r2c7 and r2c9. That box points digit 4 across row 2. Focus on column 1: the pointing pair removes 4 from r2c1, leaving r1c1 as the only surviving seat for 4 in column 1. Therefore r1c1 = 4.

In intersections, always ask two questions: where is the digit trapped, and which house loses territory?

Easy Highlights

The climb begins with calm scanning, clean houses, and direct logic.

Welcome to the Easy section: 336 puzzles that open the book gently while still feeling like real Sudoku. These grids are designed to help your eye settle into rows, columns, boxes, and the simple pleasure of finding the next honest placement.

What Easy means here

In our Sudoku world, difficulty is technique-driven. Easy means the puzzle can be solved with direct single logic: looking across rows, columns, and boxes until one digit or one cell becomes unavoidable. The goal is not speed. The goal is confidence.

What to expect

Across these 336 Easy puzzles, the weight range runs from 267 to 936, with an average weight of about 567. The clue range runs from 23 to 51, with an average of about 31 clues. This section is broad, visual, and welcoming — a calm first third before candidate awareness becomes more important.

Medium

A steady step up in challenge

Section order: 2

Puzzles in section: 336

Difficulty hint: Medium

Medium Highlights

Candidate awareness begins to matter.

Welcome to the Medium section: 336 puzzles where the book begins asking for a little more attention. The logic is still approachable, but the grid now asks you to notice not only what is missing in a house, but what can still survive in a cell.

What Medium means here

In our Sudoku world, Medium means direct hidden-single logic is no longer the whole story. Naked singles begin to appear, so you may need to look at the candidates inside a cell and notice when every digit but one has been ruled out.

What to expect

Across these 336 Medium puzzles, the weight range runs from 184 to 964, with an average weight of about 520. The clue range runs from 24 to 51, with an average of about 33 clues. This section is a steady bridge between calm Easy scanning and the stronger pattern work waiting in Hard.

Section Snapshot

These numbers show a section that remains approachable while asking for sharper candidate attention.

Hard

More demanding logic

Section order: 3

Puzzles in section: 336

Difficulty hint: Hard

Hard Highlights

The final third brings stronger patterns into view.

Welcome to the Hard section: 336 puzzles where the book reaches its strongest logic. The same two honest endings still govern every placement — only cell left for a digit, or only digit left in a cell — but the route to that ending now more often depends on pattern interplay.

What Hard means here

In our Sudoku world, Hard means that direct spotting through hidden singles and naked singles is no longer enough on its own. To move forward, you begin needing advanced pattern families such as subsets, intersections, fish, remote pairs, and other stronger structures.

What to expect

Across these 336 Hard puzzles, the weight range runs from 406 to 7786, with an average weight of about 1560. The clue range runs from 24 to 41, with an average of about 29 clues. This final section is still fair and curated, but it asks for more patience and pattern confidence.

Section Snapshot

These numbers show the final climb: tighter clue ranges, stronger technique combinations, and a richer solving landscape.

Thank you for spending time with us

You have reached the end of this volume, but not the end of the pattern. We hope these pages gave your eyes something beautiful to notice, your mind something satisfying to untangle, and your day a few moments of honest delight.

If a puzzle made you smile, pause, squint, or quietly say “ah, there you are,” then the book did what we hoped it would do. That little click — beauty first, logic next — is the whole spirit of Love Your Brain.

And if this collection kept you good company, the kindest thing you could do for us is leave a short review. Reviews help other Sudoku readers discover the book, and they help us keep building more thoughtful puzzle experiences for the road ahead.
