LOVE YOUR BRAIN

Welcome to the 2027 Medium to Hard Collection

Fresh for 2027 — a curated Sudoku book for adults, where beautiful grids meet satisfying logic.

Welcome to Love Your Brain, and to one of the newest books in our 2027 Sudoku collection for adults. This book was made with two equal kinds of love: love for beauty, and love for a sharp mind. We believe a puzzle should do more than keep you busy. It should look inviting on the page, feel elegant in the hand, and reward your attention with those satisfying moments when everything suddenly clicks.

In these pages, patterns matter in every sense. Each puzzle has been crafted around a visual identity, because solving should begin as a pleasure for the eye. Then, as you solve, a second kind of pattern begins to appear: the logical kind. Hidden singles, pairs, intersections, and other small acts of structure gradually reveal the next move. First the grid catches your eye. Then the pattern catches your mind.

That is the spirit of this book: warm, clever, and quietly joyful. We wanted it to feel less like a stack of exercises and more like a thoughtful companion. You will also feel, in these pages, the spirit of Sudo — the friendly guide from our Sudoku Companion world — whose job is always the same: to make progress feel clear, human, and encouraging.

Whether you are here to relax, sharpen your pattern recognition, or enjoy the pleasure of well-made grids, we are genuinely glad you are here. Some puzzles will welcome you gently. Others will make you pause, squint, grin, and say, “Ah. There you are.” That too is part of the fun.

Questions, feedback, suggestions, and favorite moments are all welcome.

The page is only the beginning

A beautiful printed book, with help when you want it.

This 2027 collection was designed to give you a satisfying printed Sudoku experience first: elegant grids, thoughtful progression, and puzzles whose patterns are a pleasure to look at before they become a pleasure to solve. But good company matters too. When you want a nudge, a next step, or a smarter kind of help, the experience can continue beyond the page.

Solve quietly on paper, check one step at a time, or soon, talk through a puzzle with Sudo.

On the page

A curated printed experience

This book is built for calm, satisfying solving: clean grids, thoughtful progression, and medium-to-hard puzzles for adults chosen as part of a fresh 2027 collection.

Printed to feel clear, elegant, and worth your attention.

One step at a time

Solution App

Sometimes you do not want the final answer. You just want the next truthful move. The Solution App helps you continue one step at a time, with explanation instead of answer dumping.

Help that nudges, explains, and keeps the puzzle yours.

With Sudo

Sudoku Companion App

Soon, Sudo will help through conversation. Photograph the puzzle you are working on — from this book or almost anywhere else — and get support from the exact progress you have already made.

A smart companion for this puzzle, and for the many puzzles waiting beyond it.

Available now, and what is coming next

The Solution App is ready now. You will find its QR code on the last page of this book, together with a direct website link to the same step-by-step solution. The broader Sudoku Companion experience is on the way, including Sudo support for puzzles from this book, other books, newspapers, and a growing library of more than 10,000 puzzles across our collections.

The rules are simple. The logic is elegant.

A Sudoku grid may look busy, but its logic is surprisingly tidy.

Fill the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3×3 box contains the digits 1 through 9 exactly once. That is the whole game.

Rows

Each row must contain the digits 1 through 9 exactly once.

Columns

Each column must contain the digits 1 through 9 exactly once.

Boxes

Each 3×3 box must contain the digits 1 through 9 exactly once.

Your mission as a solver

Place one correct digit in one cell. Then another. Then another. You are never required to solve the whole puzzle in one leap.

Every valid placement ends in one of two ways. Not three. Not ten. Two.

Naked Single

1. Only digit left in the cell

A cell begins with several candidate digits. One by one, impossible digits are removed until only one survives.

Hidden Single

2. Only cell left for the digit

Inside a row, column, or box, a digit may have several possible seats. If all but one are ruled out, the last remaining seat is forced.

On the next page, we show both endings on a real puzzle.

Two final truths, shown on a real puzzle

Even a real puzzle resolves one clean truth at a time.

Hidden Single

Only cell left for the digit

In row 1, digit 6 can only survive in one seat. Column 2 already contains 6 at r6c2, column 3 already contains 6 at r7c3, and box 3 already contains 6 at r3c7. Those witness houses remove every other open seat in row 1, so r1c1 must be 6.

- Primary house: row 1
- Digit tracked: 6
- Witness houses: column 2, column 3, box 3
- Witnesses: r6c2, r7c3, r3c7
- Result: r1c1 = 6

Naked Single

Only digit left in the cell

At r9c3, the three acting houses — row 9, column 3, and box 7 — already supply eight blocking digits. Column 3 blocks 1, 2, 3, and 7; row 9 blocks 5, 6, and 9; and box 7 blocks 8. That leaves only 4, so r9c3 = 4.

- Target cell: r9c3
- Acting houses: row 9, column 3, box 7
- Witness digits: 1 at r4c3, 2 at r6c3, 3 at r3c3, 5 at r9c6
- Witness digits: 6 at r9c5, 7 at r5c3, 8 at r7c2, 9 at r9c4
- Result: r9c3 = 4

Easy or Medium puzzles often reveal these endings directly through hidden singles and naked singles. Harder puzzles hide the same endings behind patterns. That is where subsets and intersections come in.

Subsets: when a small group takes control

A small pattern can quietly take digits off the table.

Puzzle source: L-2-392 • Hard section • page 168 • second puzzle on the page

The pattern to watch for is ownership. If two cells are the only places for two digits, or three cells collectively absorb a small digit set, those digits are spoken for. The rest of the house must step aside. What comes next is one of Sudoku's two familiar endings: either a cell is left with one digit, or a house is left with one cell.

Naked Triple

In column 5, the cells r4c5, r5c5, and r6c5 are the only three cells still carrying the digits 2, 5, and 7 between them. r4c5 = {2,5,7}, r5c5 = {5,7}, and r6c5 = {2,5,7}, because each cell's row, column, and box have already removed the other digits. Together, those three cells in one house contain exactly three digits. That pattern is called a naked triple. Since 2, 5, and 7 are locked into those three cells, the rest of column 5 must give them up. Now shift to row 9, the primary house for the final resolution. Witness cells such as r8c3, r5c7, and r3c8 have already blocked digit 2 from most of the row, leaving only r9c5 and r9c9 alive. The naked triple then removes 2 from r9c5 through column 5, so row 9 is left with only one cell for digit 2: r9c9 = 2.

5	3	1 8		4			9	7
		2			5	8		4
4	6	1 8	7		9			2

Naked Pair

In box 7, the cells r7c3 and r9c3 both reduce to {1,8}. That happens because each cell's row, column, and box have already removed the other digits. Since those two cells in one house collectively contain exactly two digits, they form a naked pair. Now look at r9c2, the target cell for the finish. Its row, column, and box have already removed 2, 3, 4, 5, 7, and 9 through witness cells such as r9c9, r7c2, r9c1, r7c1, r9c4, and r9c6, leaving {1,6,8}. The naked pair then strips 1 and 8 from r9c2 inside box 7, so the cell is left with only one digit: r9c2 = 6.

Subsets teach a useful habit: first see who owns the digits, then watch how that ownership clears the next truthful move.

Intersections: when one house leans on another

Sometimes a box and a line work together to force progress.

Puzzle source: L-2-389 • Hard section • page 167 • fifth puzzle on the page

The pattern to watch for here is territory. A line and a box overlap in a small set of cells. If a digit is trapped in that overlap, one house gains control and the other house has to give ground. That territorial shift does not finish the puzzle by itself. It clears the path toward one of Sudoku's two final endings.

Pointing Pair

In box 7, digit 4 can only survive in r7c3 and r8c3. The other unsolved cells in the box have already lost digit 4, so the box squeezes digit 4 onto column 3. That pattern is called a pointing pair. Now look at r2c3, the target cell for the finish. Its row, column, and box have already removed 1, 3, 5, 6, 7, 8, and 9 through witness cells such as r1c1, r2c2, r2c4, r2c5, r2c8, and r9c3, leaving {2,4}. The pointing pair then removes 4 from r2c3 through column 3, so the cell is left with only one digit: r2c3 = 2.

7	9		1			2	5	6
5	2			3			9	6
6		8	2	9	5	1 3 6	7	4

Claiming Pair

In column 9, digit 6 can only survive in r7c9 and r8c9. The other open cells in the column have already lost digit 6, so the column squeezes digit 6 into box 9. That pattern is called a claiming pair. Now shift to row 9, the primary house for the final resolution. In row 9, digit 6 is already blocked from c2 by the witness cell r2c2, leaving only r9c1 and r9c7 alive for digit 6. The claiming pair then removes 6 from r9c7 inside box 9, so row 9 is left with only one cell for digit 6: r9c1 = 6.

Intersections teach a different habit: first see where a digit is trapped, then watch the other house lose territory.

Warm-up 1: practice seeing subsets

Before the main climb begins, let your eyes rehearse the music.

Practice puzzle: L-2-220 • Hard section • page 139 • fourth puzzle on the page

Each challenge below shows the grid at the exact moment just before the hinted technique solves the next cell. Find the pattern first, then use it to identify the next step.

9				3				5
	6		2		9		7
		7				6		9
4	9						6	8
	8	6	5	9	3
						9
8	7						3	6
6	5	1	3	8	4	2	9	7
2								1

Try the triple first

In this grid, find the naked triple and use it to solve the very next cell. Which three cells form the pattern, and which cell resolves because of it?

9				3				5
	6		2		9		7
		7				6		9
4	9						6	8
1	8	6	5	9	3	7
7						9
8	7						3	6
6	5	1	3	8	4	2	9	7
2								1

Now find the pair

In this later grid state, find the naked pair and use it to solve the very next cell. Which two cells lock the pair, and which cell resolves because of it?

Check yourself

Naked Triple: r4c4, r4c5, and r4c6 form a naked triple in row 4 and collectively contain the digits 1, 2, and 7. That pattern removes 1 and 7 from r4c7. Once r4c7 loses 7, the box is left with only one cell for digit 7: r5c7 = 7.

Naked Pair: r2c1 and r3c1 form a naked pair in box 1 and collectively contain the digits 3 and 5. That pattern removes 3 from r3c2 inside the box, so row 3 is left with only one cell for digit 3: r3c1 = 3.

Do not start from the original puzzle. Start from the grid you see here, find the pattern, and solve the next cell.

Warm-up 2: practice seeing intersections

When a box and a line start negotiating, a digit usually loses its hiding place.

Practice puzzle: L-2-373 • Hard section • page 165 • first puzzle on the page

Each challenge below shows the grid at the exact moment just before the hinted intersection technique solves the next cell. First find the overlap, then decide which house gives ground.

2			8			4
	7			5			8	2
		6		2	1			5
1		7	6			2		8
	9		1	8	2		7
		2			5			1
7			2			8
	3			9	8		2
	2	8			7			4

Find the claiming pair

In this grid, find the claiming pair and use it to solve the very next cell. Which overlap traps the digit, and which cell resolves because of it?

2	1	5	8			4
	7			5	6	1	8	2
		6		2	1			5
1	5	7	6			2		8
	9		1	8	2	5	7
		2			5			1
7	6		2	1		8	5
	3	1		9	8		2
	2	8		6	7		1	4

Find the pointing pair

In this later grid state, find the pointing pair and use it to solve the very next cell. Which overlap traps the digit, and which cell resolves because of it?

Check yourself

Claiming Pair: in row 5, digit 4 is trapped at r5c1 and r5c3, so the row claims digit 4 inside box 4. That pattern removes 4 from r4c2, and since r4c2 was {4,5}, the cell is left with only 5: r4c2 = 5.

Pointing Pair: in box 2, digit 4 is trapped at r2c4 and r3c4, so the box points digit 4 onto column 4. That pattern removes 4 from r8c4, so box 8 is left with only one cell for digit 4: r7c6 = 4.

In intersections, always ask two questions: where is the digit trapped, and which house loses territory because of it?

Medium Highlights

This is where the puzzle starts to wink.

Welcome to the Medium section: the place where Sudoku becomes a little more conversational. The endings are still the same two endings you already know — either one cell is left for a digit, or one digit is left in a cell — but the route becomes more varied. Hidden singles still appear, but now naked singles join the conversation too. That makes Medium the first section where the eye must stay a little sharper and the scan must become a little more patient.

What Medium means here

In our Sudoku world, difficulty is technique-driven. A puzzle becomes Medium the moment hidden singles are no longer enough and naked singles become necessary. The puzzle is not harder because it looks dramatic or because it offers fewer clues. It is Medium because the solving pattern now asks for more direct candidate awareness.

What to expect

Across these 504 Medium puzzles, the challenge grows through weight, not through a different species of logic. Early Medium pages feel light and fluent. Later ones ask for more repeated naked-single moments, more scanning, and more persistence. The later puzzles do not speak a different language. They simply ask you to hear the same language more often and more clearly.

Hard

More demanding logic

Section order: 2

Puzzles in section: 504

Difficulty hint: Hard

Hard Highlights

The endings are the same. The path becomes more artful.

Welcome to the Hard section: the place where Sudoku begins hiding its final truths behind structure. The same two endings still govern every honest placement — only cell left for a digit, or only digit left in a cell — but now the puzzle more often asks for a pattern before it gives you the finish.

What Hard means here

In our Sudoku world, difficulty is technique-driven. Hard does not mean “meaner puzzle,” “fewer clues,” or “a grid that looks more dramatic.” It means that direct spotting through hidden singles and naked singles is no longer enough on its own. To move forward, you begin needing advanced pattern families such as subsets, intersections, fish, and other stronger structures.

What to expect

Across these 504 Hard puzzles, the section grows not only longer in step count, but richer in pattern interplay. The weight range stretches from 409 to 10228, which means the later puzzles are not merely more of the same. They are denser, more layered, and more willing to make one pattern prepare the ground for another.

Section Snapshot

These numbers show how much breadth and depth this landscape really has.

What you will encounter

In this Hard section, the puzzle may call on all of the following patterns:

- Hidden Singles
- Naked Pairs
- Hidden Pairs
- Naked Quads
- Claiming Pairs
- X-Wings
- Naked Singles
- Naked Triplets
- Hidden Triplets
- Pointing Pairs
- Remote Pairs
- XY-Wings

What shows up most

Naked Single, Naked Pair, Pointing Pair

Common pairings

Naked Pair + Naked Single, Naked Single, Naked Single + Pointing Pair

Hard does not shut the door. It simply asks you to notice where the handle moved.

Thank you for spending time with us

You have reached the end of this volume, but not the end of the pattern. We hope these pages gave your eyes something beautiful to notice, your mind something satisfying to untangle, and your day a few moments of honest delight.

If a puzzle made you smile, pause, squint, or quietly say “ah, there you are,” then the book did what we hoped it would do. That little click — beauty first, logic next — is the whole spirit of Love Your Brain.

And if this collection kept you good company, the kindest thing you could do for us is leave a short review. Reviews help other Sudoku readers discover the book, and they help us keep building more thoughtful puzzle experiences for the road ahead.
